

THE UNIVERSITY of EDINBURGH

Edinburgh Research Explorer

YOUNG & FUN: ABSTRACTION

Citation for published version:

Todd, G, Browning, AB, Fiahlo, L, Herrero, F, Pankrantz, N, Rutstein, R & Watt, L, YOUNG & FUN: ABSTRACTION, 2014, Exhibition. <<http://www.bridgettemayergallery.com/exhibitions/young-and-fun-and34abstractionand34>>

Link:

Link to publication record in Edinburgh Research Explorer

Document Version:

Peer reviewed version

Publisher Rights Statement:

© Todd, G. (Artist), Browning, A. B. (Artist), Fiahlo, L. (Artist), Herrero, F. (Artist), Pankrantz, N. (Photographer), Rutstein, R. (Artist), & Watt, L. (Artist). (2014). YOUNG & FUN: ABSTRACTION.

General rights

Copyright for the publications made accessible via the Edinburgh Research Explorer is retained by the author(s) and / or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing these publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

Take down policy

The University of Edinburgh has made every reasonable effort to ensure that Edinburgh Research Explorer content complies with UK legislation. If you believe that the public display of this file breaches copyright please contact openaccess@ed.ac.uk providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

BRIDGETTE MAYER GALLERY

The Philadelphia Inquirer

"Galleries"

Summer fun

By Edith Newhall

Bridgette Mayer Gallery's summer group show of the works of eight artists, "Young and Fun: Abstraction," lives up to its title.

Clara Fialho's paintings announce a carefree mood immediately. The Brazilian artist brings the same expansive joie-de-vivre to her tiny paintings that she brings to this show's largest painting, an explosion of colorful drips and marks on a hazy yellow background that suggests the smoky aftermath of a carnival.

Arden Bandler Browning also steals the show with her hyperactive abstractions of urban environments that call to mind a collision of Eric Fischl, minus the figures, and Richard Diebenkorn's abstracted landscapes.

Federico Herrero's monumental painting, "11:11 AM" (2009), defines fun abstraction with its bright, awkward blocks of color, although I would have liked to have seen a more recent work.

Laura Watt makes a strong impression with her paintings of patterns inspired by Arabic tiles, Amish quilts, Buddhist mandalas, Pygmy bark clothes, and Scottish tartans.

As much as I like the Scottish artist Graeme Todd's mysterious landscapes, I was too quickly reminded of Peter Doig's paintings.

"Young and Fun: Abstraction" also includes works by Alejandro Diaz, Nathan Pankratz, and Rebecca Rutstein.

---

Bridgette Mayer Gallery, 709 Walnut St., Tuesdays through Saturdays 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. 215-413-8893 or bridgettemayergallery.com. Through Aug. 15.

"Galleries" by Edith Newhall and "Art" by Thomas Hine appear in alternating weeks.